

Girls share their passion for philanthropy at Social Action Expo

Meriden's Year 6 Prefects recently represented their School at the IPSHA Social Action Expo. The event is designed to strengthen primary students' awareness of social issues. It was an opportunity for students who are passionate about social justice to share ideas and collaborate with like-minded students from around the state.

The Meriden Prefects spoke about "Focus Weeks" they have arranged this year for students from Pre-Kindergarten through to Year 6, giving examples of the activities they created.

The girls were interested in presentations from other schools and arrived back at Meriden with exciting ideas for initiatives that could be implemented in the Junior School.

They have been further inspired by a quote from American cultural anthropologist, Ms Margaret Mead, "Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world. Indeed, it is the only thing that ever has," to generate new ways they can contribute to their School community.
